

Healthsource Global Code of Ethics

HSGS CODE OF ETHICS OF CARE, TREATMENT, AND SERVICES

Patients and their families rely on healthcare professional's at the most vulnerable times in their lives. HSGS mission is to provide the best possible care, treatment and services in the important time of a patient and families lives.

Values

- Be open with communications with the patient and their families.
- Be fair and responsible in the management of all resources.
- Be an advocate for the needs of patients and their families.
- Be accountable and consistent with ethical principles and values.
- Be accurate and committed to the collection of relevant patient health data.
- Be knowledgeable of current professional practice standards, laws, and regulations.
- Be competent and current in all licensure and credentials.
- Be professional in development with peers and other healthcare providers.
- Be collaborative with all relationships within the healthcare environment to promote common interest and shared values.
- Be safe and effective in all aspects of the healthcare environment.

Mission

These values are framed within an ethic of care and ethical principles. HSGS understands the relation and dependence between the healthcare system, individuals and society. Respect of each individual's uniqueness, cultural diversity, family and society relationships is essential in the healthcare environment.
